Milestone 1: Written Presentation

I. Website Evaluation: Writer's Block Bookstore

"Writer's Block Bookstore" does not have a great website according to users. This website is not easily navigated or used by visitors to the site.

A. User Experience

The first thing people notice once they have clicked on anything is that there is no "Home Page" in the navigation bar. The "Home Page" link is the store's logo in the center of the page at the top (See Figure 1.1). This website does not have any major typos or grammatical errors; however, it is not user-friendly at all. The pages are extremely hard to navigate and make your way through while remembering where you have already been. More than twice the user will need to try and find a particular page. The pages are not marked (See Figure 1.2). The sub-page shown is found under the header for "Featured Books." Nowhere is this indicated while looking at this page. This isn't very clear for users and other people visiting the site. They must figure out where they are and how to return if needed (See Figure 1.3). The drop-down of sub-pages does not even list the Banned Books page. While pages are not indicated as they should be there is also no "back button" to get you back to the page prior.

1. Opinion

Overall this website is not user-friendly and needs some improvements and functionality help. The navigation needs a lot of work and the content of this site needs to be better organized to optimize UX.

2. Opportunities for Improvement

Writer's Block Bookstore needs a whole new makeover. The Navigation needs to be reconfigured, the site map for this website needs to be improved, user-friendliness needs to be reevaluated, user experience needs a lot of improvement, and the overall design could also use some work. The content is not organized in a way that is easy to follow and quickly learned. Some of the information is outdated and therefore inaccurate.

B. Heuristics Evaluation

According to (Nielsen) there are 10 usability heuristics for user interface design. Use these 10 heuristics on this website to see if they are being used. The first one is the visibility of system status. This means knowing where you are as a user. This website does not implement this heuristic (See Figure 1.2). While clearly on a page with the header Staff Picks there is no indication of what page this is under from the navigation bar. The second is having a match between the system and the real world. This does happen with social media icons. However, if you hover over them there is no alt text to help you figure out what they are if you do not know already (See Figure 1.4). The third heuristics are user control and freedom. This means having an emergency exit according to (Nielsen). Users click on things that they don't mean to, and they need the ability to recover from that easily without going through a long process. Writer's Block Bookstore does not have this practice on its website. Consistency and standards are the fourth heuristics. According to (Nielsen) this means users should not have to wonder whether different words situations or actions mean the same thing. Following platform and industry conventions. By not having a standard home page this would count as not an industry standard. Number five is error prevention. These would be errors the users could get themselves into. Clicking without paying attention and then not knowing where they are, but having a back button to take them to what they were previously on, or a pop-up message asking if they are sure they would like to commit to said action. Recognition rather than recall is the sixth one and means the users should not have to remember things that should be visible or easily retrievable when needed according to (Nielsen). The website in question does not have this implemented. The seventh one is flexibility and efficiency of use. These are shortcuts, hidden from novice users. That may speed up the interaction for the expert user so that the design can cater to both inexperienced and experienced users according to (Nielsen). Writer's Block Bookstore does not have anything like this. The eighth heuristic is aesthetic and minimalistic design. This means the website wouldn't have irrelevant or rarely needed information. Writer's Block is loaded with this type of information (See Figure 1.5). In a perfect website, there would be no errors, which brings us to the ninth heuristic of helping users recognize, diagnose, and recover from errors. The error messages that pop up should be in plain language and not an error code. Writer's Block did not have any error messages with users yet. The last and final heuristic is help and documentation which is instructions on how to complete their tasks if stuck. The best practice is to not need any additional explanations, but if you do need them, they should be provided. Now knowing all of these heuristics according to (Nielsen) we can conclude that Writer's Block Bookstore is not in compliance with the usability principles.

Persona Three:

NAME: Reagan Bridges
AGE: 33
OCCUPATION: Credit and Collections Manager - Remote
INCOME: $53,000
STATUS: Single
LOCATION: Winter Park, FL
BACKGROUND:
Reagan is an introverted- extrovert, Millennial looking to join a fantasy book club and start contributing to the community. She is new to the area and wants to get out and find others who enjoy doing the things she does. She reads all the time, and she is trying to get out of the house and find friends that read too. She wants to volunteer for events and help the community strive. She loves fantasy books and cats. Finding friends in the area will keep her active while she works from home.

OBJECTIVES:

After moving to the area recently, she decided she needed to get out of the house and find friends who enjoy doing the same things she does. She was walking around the area and found a bookstore called Writer's Block Bookstore. She loves to read and would love to join a fantasy book club, as this is what she is reading on her Kindle app and on Audible. Having a book club meeting each week with people her age would help her mental health tremendously. Since she is new to the area, works from home and she does not have any friends close by to go out and do things with. She decided to go home and find their website online to see if she would like this bookstore and what they had to offer.

FRUSTRATIONS:

- 1. No reviews of the bookstore are on the website.
- 2. Book Clubs do not have an age range for them.
- 3. The navigation is awful, and links are not set up properly.
- 4. Inclusion Does this bookstore welcome everyone?
- 5. The website is not organized in an orderly way. Hard to go through and find things, not to mention re-finding things.

THEIR IDEAL EXPERIENCE:

- 1. Inclusive vibes/content on the site.
- 2. Better user experience and more user-friendly site.
- 3. Better overall content organization.
- 4. Add reviews to the site so that we can see what others think of the store.

QUOTE:

"This bookstore looks so cute and inviting by the curb, however, after looking at their website they seem unorganized and closed-minded. I am not sure if this bookstore will be a good fit for me as a Millennial trying to find friends. I need a bookstore that is inclusive and welcoming to everyone. Would they be willing to be open-minded and grow with the times?"

Scenario One:

Subject	Elizabeth "Beth" Price
User Profile	Single mother, empty nesting, and looking for a hobby that is fun and meeting people her age.
Background	Beth was given this website by her sister to find a book club locally. She wanted be able to have fun with people her own age doing something she loves to do.
	Reading is an activity she enjoys doing and she wants to find others like her.
Objective	Beth is going to sign up for a newsletter to receive emails about upcoming events.
Narrative	1. Searched the website for "Writer's Block Bookstore
	2. Once the home page loads, she sees a link for exactly what she needs.
	3. She clicks on the link in the top left corner that says, "Sign up for Newsletter!"
	4. This link takes her to the "About Us" page and nowhere is there a form to sign up for the newsletter.
	5. Scrolling through the page she finds a "Create Account" link, but nothing more on the newsletter besides the archives.
	6. Not what was wanted.
	7. She goes back to Google for another choice in local bookstores.

Scenario Two:

Subject	Reagan Bridges
User Profile	Introverted-extrovert, millennial working from home and trying to make new friends after moving to the area recently.
Background	Reading is a definite hobby for Reagan, and she needs to get out of the house so what better way than to try and make friends doing what she knows she loves?
	Joining a books club locally would allow her to meet new people and make new friends who enjoy doing the same things she does.
Objective	Join a fantasy book club with people her age.
Narrative	1. Go to the Website's home page.
	2. Click on the main menu option "Book Clubs".
	3. This takes you to a page telling you what the month's books are and details on how to purchase them.
	4. Nowhere to click to sign up.
	5. No Age Range information.
	6. Gives an event date of November $13^{\text{th}}$ , $2023 - 6 \text{ PM} - 7 \text{ PM}$ @ the bookstore.
	7. Not exactly what was being looked for.
	8. Goes back to Google to search for a book club sign-up for millennials.

Scenario Three:

Subject	Chip Wallace
User Profile	Happily married gay man who loves traveling and checking out local bookstores wherever they go.
Background	Chip and his husband have traveled to Florida. Close to Winter Park and when Chip searched for local bookstores this site came up. Chip loves going to the local bookstores and looking through the trinkets and finding a new great read!
Objective	Try to find a list of homosexual romance books.
Narrative	1. Go to the Website's home page.
	2. Click on "Shop". This takes you to the page "Shop and Search".
	3. There you are given blocks of different genres such as: Banned, Fiction,
	Gift, Coming Soon, and Non-Fiction. Children, Young Adults, and New

II. New Website Design

Design Brief Proposal:

- 1. Project: Website Redesign: https://www.writersblockbookstore.com/
- 2. Background of Company: Lauren is the owner of this bookstore, and she was finishing her master's degree in social work when she was listening to a podcast when she heard Ann Patchett talking about a local bookstore. She was inspired to open a local bookstore for her community to have and enjoy.
- 3. Project Objective (Scope): To improve the design of this website by implementing UX and UI qualities and principles to enhance this website to its full potential it has. Currently, the design is lacking hugely and just some simple techniques and principles could help this website to reach its full potential.
- 4. Target Audience: Men and women of all ages. From children to adults enjoying books and having a place they can go and feel welcome to enter and shop around for the genres they like to read.
- Competitors: Local Bookstores around the same area of Winter Park and Winter Garden Florida.
- 6. Tone of Voice: Laid back and friendly. Easily understood for children and adults.
- 7. Functionality: The functionality of this website is just getting them by. The site is functional to a certain degree. The site is just lacking a designer's touch to help the usability and experience.
- 8. Key Issues:
  - a. Links not linked properly.
  - b. Organization of content.

- c. Fix Navigation Issues
- d. Create a Contact Form for the contact page.
- e. Create widgets for Calendars.
- f. Create a Genre List and Sub-Lists.
- g. Make the website more inclusive.
- h. Design a more updated and modern logo.
- i. Use color theory to come up with a more appropriate color scheme.
- j. More pictures of events and in general.
- k. Make the site Accessible.
- 1. Brand Mission more prominent and in a better format and aesthetically appealing.
- m. Fix multiple "About" pages.

Outline according to (Coleman).

How will Resolving the Issues Improve UX and Usability:

Implementing the UX and UI principles to this site will help this site tremendously by making it easier for the user to navigate and the content will be better organized for use and make more sense to the technologically knowledgeable person. By fixing the key issues it will make the UX and UI easier to fix as well. It is usable to the Boomers and Gen Zers. They were not born in the technology generation, but they do know how a site is supposed to navigate. The call-to-action button on the home page will be fixed and usable. This way users can sign up for the newsletter without creating an account and see what is going on. Fixing these key issues will create a better canvas, so to speak, to start applying the design principles and elements to in a more modern way.

A. Personas and Scenarios:

Based on the models generated from the personas and the scenarios they have added additional information on the experience by seeing that everyone wanted to leave the site and look for another. They were ready to completely give up and go look elsewhere for the information they needed. Knowing this information, I can now use this to help design a better website. One that will keep the user interested and easily navigated to get the user where they need to go without a lot of trial and error on their part. According to (Salazar) the smaller the scope, the richer the data. The personas

Part A (Design):

This website needs a lot of work, but fixing the overall user experience and usability of the website will go a long way in making this a better site. The overall functionality of this site needs to be improved tremendously. In this day and time, all websites need to be accessible as well as functional. To fix these things, the website will need a visual makeover. A new color scheme and imagery along with accessible typography will be a good start. Help make their mission statement an actual part of the website and can be a good way to introduce the thing the mission statement says. Fix the call-to-action link on the home page and all of the issues that the navigation has within it.

Part B (Background):

Writer's Block Bookstore is a place where all readers can come and share their knowledge and have fun. A place with interactive events, strong support of their community, and education. This company has the best of intentions as listed in their mission statement. Lauren, the owner, was moved by a podcast to open her bookstore because she thought there was a need in her area, and she was inspired to do it. This site is for people 18 and older who love to read and socialize. This site should be completely functional for the users that visit. It shouldn't be very descriptive or overdone. No bright neon colors or abstract imagery. Sometimes, simple is best.
