National Anthem

by Francis Scott Key

O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming;
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.
O say, does that Star-Spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Alma Mater

by Fred Lewis Pattee

For the glory of old State,
For her founders, strong and great,
For the future that we wait,
Raise the song, raise the song,

Sing our love and loyalty,
Sing our hopes that, bright and free,
Rest, O Mother dear, with thee.
All with thee, all with thee.

When we stood at childhood's gate,
Shapeless in the hands of fate,
Thou didst mold us, dear old State,
Dear old State, dear old State.

May no act of ours bring shame
To one heart that loves thy name,
May our lives but swell thy fame,
Dear old State, dear old State!

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Nina Jablonski is one of Penn State's most distinguished faculty and one of the foremost scholars in her field. Her research examines the evolution of human skin and hair (focusing especially on skin pigmentation and the evolution of touch and body decoration) and explores attitudes about human diversity and their correlation with skin-color-based race concepts. She has pursued this research within the context of more than forty years of studies of primate and human evolution in relation to environmental change.

Jablonski has written numerous peer-reviewed papers, commentaries, and book reviews and presented scientific and public lectures around the world. She is the author of Skin: A Natural History and Living Color: The Biological and Social Meaning of Skin Color; she is also coauthor of Skin We Are In, a children's book on diversity, and It's Just Skin, Silly! a forthcoming book on skin color for small children.

Jablonski also works in public education on human evolution, human physical diversity, and racism. She has been the primary scientific and educational content adviser for several television documentaries, including the Emmy award-winning PBS web series, Finding Your Roots: The Seedlings.

Jablonski has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the California Academy of Sciences. She received her bachelor's degree in biology from Bryn Mawr College and doctorate in anthropology from the University of Washington; she also holds an honorary doctorate from Stellenbosch University.

ABOUT THE COLLEGE

The Liberal Arts have been part of the Penn State curriculum since its founding in 1855. However, it wasn't until 1909 that an official "home" for Liberal Arts was formed by President Edwin Erle Sparks, who combined the School of History, Mathematics, and Philosophy with the School of Language and Literature to create the School of Liberal Arts. President Sparks, a widely known historian, named himself the school's first dean.

Today, the College of the Liberal Arts is home to 24 schools, departments, and programs that offer nearly 50 undergraduate degrees and more than 25 graduate degrees to more than 5,300 undergraduates and nearly 900 graduate students each year. Additionally, virtually every Penn State student—regardless of their major—takes almost one-third of their classes in Liberal Arts.

The "Live to Learn, Learn to Live" motto etched outside the lecture hall in Sparks Building—the college's administrative home—reflects the college's mission to stimulate a love of learning. In order to fulfill this mission, the College of the Liberal Arts seeks to provide students with an educational experience that combines a traditional liberal arts foundation in communication, analytical thinking, ethical decision-making, and appreciation for other cultures and other times with learning opportunities that allow students to develop global interconnections, cultivate digital fluencies, and apply their knowledge and skills in real-world contexts. In so doing, our faculty and students play a key role in identifying, exploring, and resolving some of the most pressing issues facing society today—from studying democracy, to promoting civic engagement, to combating racial and class discrimination, to reducing global conflict, to educating the leaders of tomorrow.

NOTE ABOUT DISTINCTION: This group is made up of those students who have completed the required number of credits at the University and who are in the top 12 percent of their graduating class in their college. The 12 percent is divided into 2 percent summa cum laude (highest distinction), 4 percent magna cum laude (high distinction), and 6 percent cum laude (distinction). This list was produced on March 20, 2023, as an unofficial list of graduating students earning honors.

 = highest distinction
 = high distinction
* = distinction

NOTE: This program contains the list of candidates for graduation as of March 20, 2023. Students who indicated their intent to graduate after that production date are not listed. Subject to completion of all degree requirements, degrees will be conferred as indicated upon the individuals listed herein and upon such others as may meet the requirements. If you have questions about your name, degree, or distinction listed in this program, please reach out to David Lingenfelter at dxl127@psu.edu. Congratulations on your achievements!

THE PATERNO FELLOWS PROGRAM

The Paterno Fellows Program is an innovative academic experience offered jointly by the College of the Liberal Arts and the Schreyer Honors College that encourages students to develop to their full potential. The Paterno Fellows experience offers “an education for leadership” in the best tradition of the liberal arts. It molds well-rounded students who are ready for the world and prepares them for citizenship, for lifetime learning, and for the satisfaction derived from an exemplary education. As honors students, Paterno Fellows earn distinction in the following areas: excellence in communication; international and intercultural awareness; and ethics, service, and leadership. In addition to completing an honors thesis and an education abroad or internship experience, all Paterno Fellows graduate with in-depth academic credentials in at least two fields.
