

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in enthusiastic and wholehearted support of Stacy Alley's promotion to full professor. Over the two years I have been on the faculty and collaborated with Stacy, I have been consistently impressed by her unwavering commitment to the program, our students, and the work we do every day. She strikes an admirable balance of meeting students where they are while also pushing them to their limits and encouraging them to find ways to grow on their own.

Stacy is one of the finest stage directors I have ever had the pleasure of working with, blending creativity with practicality and precision in a way that motivates students to bring their A games to every rehearsal, and sets them up to shine in performance. In addition, she constantly seeks out opportunities for our students, whether that is bringing in guest artists, informing them of auditions, or simply encouraging them to perform and share their talents.

Simply put, Stacy is the rock that holds that holds our program together, and I am so grateful to call her a colleague, mentor, and friend.
